DMT SYSTEM: DECONSOLIDATING TO GROW

The new mission of DMT System S.p.A. ("DMT System") is clearly identified: to supply solutions for media assets management. What does it mean, specifically?

"We focalised our technological know-how and capabilities, developed with leading national and international broadcasting operators, on the whole value chain of broadcast products and services", Mr Russo, the new CEO of DMT System declared.

The decision taken in 2007 by DMT Group to split the two core business, towers assets for wireless operators and broadcast technology, moves in the direction of creating two primary players focused on two different business segments: infrastructure for telecommunications (DMT Towertel), technology and services (DMT System).

The deconsolidation process for DMT System aims to combined the company assets and expertise with major national and international broadcasting partners in order to offer "turn key" solutions for leading broadcasting operators and completely the value chain.

This strategic action would launch DMT System as a leading international player, positioning aggressively its products and services on a worldwide scale.

NOTE FOR EDITORS

DMT, Digital Multimedia Technologies, (DMT.MI), company founded in 1999 by the current chairman Alessandro Falciai, is leader in the Italian and European market for the supply of systems and services for the distribution of analogue and digital television signals.

In the Terrestrial Digital field DMT has contributed to the realisation of the network of transmission television signals for Rai, Mediaset and La 7/Mtv that permits the three national broadcasters to cover over 70% of the population.

Since 2001 DMT also operates as a Tower Operator; DMT is today the principal independent tower operator thanks to more than 1.406 sites managed. The shareholding is held as follows: 42% by management, 58% free float. The DMT Group has approx. 250 employees, 25% of which in the Research and Development area.
